Cotton's Corner

I've been visiting a few of my fellow felines in our cat ward. Our vets have been helping a few of them that have come in with Mycoplasma haemofelis, a bacteria that attaches to their red blood cells, breaking them down and causing them to become very sick and anaemic. Being bitten by fleas is a common way of transferring these parasites. My people at the Veterinary Centre ensure that I am treated for fleas all year round, even in wintertime when fleas can still be very active, to keep me safe and protected.

Rearing Pet Lambs

Having children rear and care for a pet lamb is a wholesome and rewarding experience. It teaches them responsibility and reliability, and they see the results of their efforts in a healthy, growing, friendly animal.

Some basic necessities to help your child successfully rear healthy pet lambs are:

- A warm, clean, dry and draught free environment to live in
- Unrestricted access to drinking water
- Colostrum if the lamb is found less than 24 hours old
- A good quality Lamb Milk Replacer – 1 lamb will consume approximately 10kg of Milk Replacer from birth to weaning. It is important to stick to the recommended feeding guidelines on the back of the packet to reduce the risk of complications.

No matter how busy our spring is, our vets will always find time to talk to and advise our young people in the best way to care for their new found friends.

Stressed Pets

A lot of focus has been made recently on mental health support and alleviation of stress in humans. Pets often play a big part in relieving stress in their owners, but less attention is paid to anxiety in our pets. Pets can feel situational stress (e.g., fireworks, travelling or at the vets) or they can suffer from more ongoing stress at home such as separation anxiety or aggression between household animals. Chronic stress can lead to health issues. There has been a lot of advances in the way we can help animals with stress so please come and talk to us about the ways we can help.

If your pet hates coming to the veterinary clinic. Please give us a call and we may be able to help with some medication before they come in to make the experience more pleasant for all.

Long-haired Cats

With their soft, luscious coats and fluffy tummies, long-haired cats are truly magnificent, but they also require a bit of extra maintenance. All that fabulous fur is often too much for your cat to groom by themselves, so they need a bit of help to keep it in tip top condition.

While short-haired cats need a bit of help grooming too – a quick brush once a week should do it – long-haired cats ideally need to be brushed daily to prevent their fur from becoming tangled and matted.

If you have a long-haired cat who needs some grooming help, follow our tips for preventing a bad fur day.

- Set a routine (same time every day), this creates a nice bonding time.
- Find a comb/brush that works and your cat doesn't mind.
- Feed a healthy diet, there is hairball diets for cats that suffer.
- Look out for mats.
- Clean up the hair afterwards.
